

Nixon heading for collision with Cox on tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has reluctantly yielded ground in his historic battle to withhold the Watergate tapes but not enough to avoid a head-on collision with special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

In a statement issued at the White House Friday night, Nixon said he had agreed to let Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., listen to the tapes to verify the accuracy of a presidential summary of their contents.

Nixon said he personally would prepare the summary and it would be given to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who ordered the President last Aug. 29, to give him the nine tapes subpoenaed by Cox, and to the Senate Watergate committee.

Nixon said he would not ask the Supreme Court to review a Court of Appeals decision upholding Sirica's order and he directed Cox to halt efforts to enforce his subpoena.

Cox issued a statement saying that if he complied with the President's instructions it "would violate my solemn pledge to the Senate and the country...I shall not violate my promise."

The special prosecutor said he would inform the courts that "no steps are being taken to turn over the important notes, memoranda and other documents that the court orders require."

It was understood that the President, who pointedly referred to Cox as "an employee of the executive branch," was ready to fire the prosecutor if he continued to press his court battle.

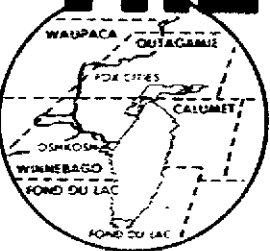

The President said he had the support of Sens. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., the senior members of the Senate Watergate committee for his decision to let Stennis listen to the tapes.

Nixon remained under court order to surrender the tapes to Sirica and it would be up to the judge to say if he were willing to accept a summary in place of the tapes themselves.

Nixon said he has "the utmost confidence" in Sirica's "discretion and integrity." But, he said, "to allow the tapes to be heard by one judge would create a precedent that would be available to 400 district judges."

Kissinger flies to Moscow today

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Diplomats predicted a major Middle East peace offensive by the United States and the Soviet Union today as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed for Moscow for talks with Soviet officials.

Kissinger's trip came one day after Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin returned from Cairo where he had four days of secret meetings with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The subject of the Kosygin-Sadat talks were not officially disclosed, but United Nations and Moscow diplomats said he apparently carried some kind of peace plan.

Administration sources in Washington said President Nixon knew about Kosygin's trip in advance and has told close associates he expects an early end to the Middle East fighting. U.S. and Soviet officials have met regularly in Washington since hostilities began.

Kissinger was accompanied to Moscow by Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to the United States, and nine U.S. officials, including Joseph J. Sisco, the assistant secretary of state for Middle Eastern and South Asian affairs.

U.N. diplomats familiar with behind-the-scenes maneuvering said Friday the Kosygin trip to Cairo and constant U.S.-Soviet negotiations on the war could lead to the introduction of a cease-fire resolution in the U.N. Security Council by as early as next week.

Council members split at the body's last meeting Oct. 12 over ways to end the war and no further meeting had been expected until one side or another makes significant headway on the battlefield.

A Western diplomat said any U.S.-Soviet ideas for a ceasefire may not be presented directly by the two super-powers, but may be offered as a British-French proposal. China has repeatedly accused the United States and the Soviet Union of conspiring together to control the affairs of other nations.

The Yugoslav Tanjug news agency said Friday that rumors of a Soviet peace plan calling for a cease-fire and an Israeli withdrawal from the Arab lands she occupied in 1967 were circulating in Cairo.

The news agency said the plan would provide for the borders of the warring parties to be guaranteed by international forces, including U.S. and Soviet troops.

The attitude Israel takes could be decisive to any hopes for a negotiated settlement, even if Washington and Moscow reach a consensus on a ceasefire proposal. With its forces advancing on the Egyptian front the Israeli government may resist an early halt to the fighting.

"No one has put a peace proposal to us yet," said Israeli sources here Friday. Abba Eban, Israel's foreign minister, was called home for consultation.

The secretary of state had attended until close to midnight a dinner given for him by Huang Chen, head of the Chinese liaison office, as a sendoff for a sixth visit to Peking. Kissinger did not tip his hand publicly. He even paused to sign an autograph for an admirer before stepping into his black limousine.

Mom fights abortion for girl of 13

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Judge Michael T. Sullivan took under advisement Friday the case of a 13-year-old girl whose request for an abortion is being opposed by her mother, who herself was a mother at 15.

The girl, now four months pregnant, is already the mother of a 5-month-old daughter who lives with an aunt. The teenager is in the custody of welfare officials.

Sullivan's Milwaukee County Court courtroom has been the scene of a multi-day debate over what the young girl's attorney calls her right to have an abortion if she wishes.

"I do not believe in abortion because it is murder," her mother testified.

The girl, who played with her infant daughter while the 28-year-old grandmother testified, was asked: "Do you think the fetus inside you is a live baby?"

"I don't know what it is," she replied. "It wasn't no form of a baby, so how could it be a baby?"

Her mother was asked a similar question, and replied: "When she's pregnant, it's a baby."

Robert Blondis, attorney for the teenager, reminded the woman that psychiatrists had testified the girl may develop emotional problems over the latest pregnancy and might try to perform an abortion unassisted.

"What's wrong with having a baby?" the woman said. "It won't make her crazy."

"She is not too young," she continued. "She can give it up for adoption."

When asked if she would like to be the teen-ager's guardian, the woman said: "I thought I was."

Blondis has asked Sullivan to clear the way for an abortion. The judge said he would file a written opinion in a week.

Jet hijacked to Bolivia

BUENOS AIRES (AP) —Three armed hijackers commandeered an Aerolineas Argentinas jet with 48 persons aboard today and forced it to fly to Yacuiba, Bolivia, airport sources in the northern Argentine city of Salta reported.

The Boeing 737 was hijacked during a domestic flight from Buenos Aires to Salta, 1,000 miles north of the capital. It made a 50-minute stop at Tucuman where airport authorities were reported to have refused demands for fuel on instructions from the government in Buenos Aires.

Yacuiba is in southern Bolivia, just across the Argentine border.

The hijackers were reported to be armed with high-caliber weapons and hand grenades.

Female ambassadors

BUENOS AIRES (AP) —Isabel Peron, Latin America's first woman vice president, says Argentina probably will send some women abroad as ambassadors.

"Women are going to have many more roles to fill in the future," the 42-year-old third wife of President Juan D. Peron said Thursday after visiting her senate offices.

She spent almost an hour exploring her offices and conferring with senate vice president Jose A. Allende, who swore the Perons into office last Friday.

Syrian jets hit Israeli refinery

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syrian jets bombed an oil refinery near Haifa today in the first Arab air raid on the Israeli heartland, Damascus announced. The claim was denied in Israel.

The Syrian military command said the Israeli refinery was attacked "in retaliation for enemy attacks on some of our economic targets and installations."

It gave no assessment of damage, and the announcement was scoffed at in Israel.

"We haven't even had an air raid alert," said a Haifa police spokesman. "There have been no enemy planes, no bombs, and the refinery is fine."

The refinery, believed the largest in Israel, lies about four miles north of Haifa, a Mediterranean port of about 215,000.

Reports from the resort of Nahariya, near the refinery, said a Syrian MIG fighter was shot down there this morning and crashed into a house, injuring a woman.

Israeli jets and gunboats have attacked Syrian oil depots at the Mediterranean port of Tartus, a pipeline terminal at Baniyas and Syria's main oil refinery at Homs in central Syria. The Israelis also have shelled Syrian ports from the sea and bombed targets in Damascus.

The Syrian deputy premier for economic affairs, Mohammed Haidar, told newsmen in Damascus today that the Israeli air raids have done $508 million damage. He said Syria's oil installations have been "totally destroyed."

Israel has reported Syrian and Palestinian guerrilla rocket attacks on villages and settlements. But neither Egypt nor Syria has brought the 15-day-old Middle East war home to major Israeli population or industrial centers.

The bombing report from Damascus came as Israeli forces on the western side of the Suez Canal said they were expanding their beachhead and had pushed 12 to 15 miles inside Egypt proper in vicious tank battles.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said in an interview broadcast today that the Israelis were trying to get behind the Egyptians in the Sinai on the eastern bank of the canal and force them to fight "on a front that is not of their own choosing."

Fighting raged along both sides of the canal Friday as Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin ended a four-day visit to Cairo and President Nixon dispatched Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Moscow at the Soviets' behest to discuss ways of ending the Middle East conflict.

The Egyptian command minimized the effects of the Israeli force inside Egypt. But an Israeli spokesman said its units on the west bank have knocked out

10 Egyptian missile batteries and were "creating the necessary conditions for victory on this front."

The two sides exchanged artillery fire on both sides of the canal during the night, according to an Israeli communiqué.

Meanwhile, Israel said Syrian, Iraqi and Jordanian armor units attacked positions in Syria Friday in an apparent effort to keep the pressure on along both fronts of the war.

Although the Israelis have not revealed how many troops they sent across the Suez Canal, Pentagon sources in Washington placed the number at about 12,000 men including 300 tanks.

The Egyptians said the force crossed at Bitter Lake along the central portion of the canal earlier this week, but Israel has not pinpointed the place of crossing. The bridgehead was believed to be about 65 miles from Cairo and Israeli officers on the Sinai front told correspondents Friday that the Israeli force was moving north along the canal.

The Israeli command has said nothing about its objectives on the west bank, but the Israelis were believed to be trying to cut off Egyptian troops on the eastern side of the canal or drive them deeper into the Sinai desert beyond the protective umbrella of Egyptian surface-to-air missile batteries.

A Cairo communique said Egyptian forces were engaged "in heavy fighting" along the western bank and Israel said its troops encountered "enemy armored, air and infantry resistance" all day Friday.

New type of Hong Kong flu is coming

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A new type of Hong Kong flu will strike this winter but a nationwide epidemic is not expected, the Center for Disease Control says.

"A new Type B influenza virus has been isolated, the B-Hong Kong 572," Dr. Robert Rubin, an epidemiologist, said Thursday.

There are two types of influenza virus — A and B. Hong Kong flu Type A struck in the winter of 1968-69 and was blamed for killing 27,900 Americans and leaving hundreds of thousands memorably ill. The new Type B Hong Kong flu has been occurring in Japan, Australia and England, said Rubin.

"It's probable that this virus will become prevalent in the United States this winter," he said, adding the center cannot predict how widespread the new flu will be.

Rubin said London flu is more likely to occur than the new strain of Hong Kong influenza. The London flu, Type A, occurred in this country last year.

There are two theories as to how a new strain appears. One is that it simply is a variation in an existing virus. The other is that it results from a recombination or genetic interchange between a human type of virus and one that affects animals or birds.

When a different flu virus comes along, previous vaccines usually do not work against it. Another CDC spokesman said there would likely be two different vaccines this winter, one for the Hong Kong flu and another for the London flu.

Although flu vaccines are not completely effective, immunization is suggested for high-risk individuals.

The spokesman said most of the deaths in 1968-69 occurred among the elderly chronically ill.

Former Sen. Gruening lauds war resistance

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — One of the first congressmen to have questioned U.S. policies in Vietnam expressed compliments Friday for what he called the courage of antiwar demonstrators.

However, former Sen. Ernest Gruening of Alaska said he did not endorse vandalism in antiwar activities. He also said he did not wish to comment on the 1970 bombing of the Army Mathematics Research Center in the University of Wisconsin's Sterling Hall which claimed the life of a physics student.

Gruening, 86, joined a long list of witnesses having testified during the presentence hearing of Karleton Lewis Armstrong, who has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and arson in the campus bombing.

"Resistance to this war was not only a right but a solemn duty," Gruening said. "It took courage," he said, for a draft resister to declare he would "not fight this obscene war."

Gruening, who served in the Senate 10 years, said the late President Johnson had information in 1964 that could have dissuaded Congress from approving the war-promoting Gulf of Tonkin resolution.

He said a telegram had been sent by a U.S. warship captain, advising Johnson to double check reports about North Vietnam attacks on U.S. vessels before reacting to the reports.

But the telegram "was deliberately suppressed," Gruening testified. "If we had known about this telegram, nobody in Congress would have voted for the Tonkin Gulf resolution, and we would have been spared this ghastly tragedy."

The blame for subsequent years of conflict, he said, "lies on the head of Lyndon Baines Johnson."

The former Democratic governor also had words for President Nixon's war program.

The U.S. presence in the war "was not ended by Richard Nixon. It was ended by Congress' voting to cut off bombing funds," he said.

As for Nixon's "peace with honor," Gruening said "nothing could have been more void of honor than killing helpless people with bombs."

Defense lawyer William Kunstler has spent the week with presentation of testimony in what he calls a trial of the U.S. role in Vietnam.

Armstrong, 27, also was convicted of several other vandalism incidents during 1969-70 antiwar demonstrations. He contends the Sterling Hall bombing was a political protest and not a criminal act.

3 airlines cut flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's three largest domestic airlines, in an effort to raise profits and lower fuel consumption, agreed Friday to cut 82 daily flights on 15 routes.

They also agreed to use smaller aircraft on five other routes.

The agreements, if approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board, could mean less congestion at some of the nation's busiest airports. But it also could mean air passengers will have trouble getting a seat on the flight they want — especially during holiday seasons.

United Air Lines, Trans World Airlines and American Airlines reached the agreements after two days of negotiations. Similar talks are scheduled to start between other carriers Oct. 31.

The biggest cutback will come on the New York City-Chicago run, where the three carriers agreed to eliminate 15 of the 70 daily round trips — or 30 one-way flights per day.

The carriers also agreed to cut three round trips between Philadelphia and Los Angeles, and two round trips on the Boston-San Francisco and Philadelphia-San Francisco routes.

Two round trips each day also would be cut from the following routes: New York-Denver; Washington-Denver; Chicago-Las Vegas, Detroit-Los Angeles; New York-Cincinnati and Boston-Los Angeles. New York-Davton and Philadelphia-Chicago would lose one round trip and one one-way flight each day. Washington-San Diego and Hartford, Conn.-Los Angeles each would lose one round trip daily.

New York-Las Vegas flights would be reduced on weekdays by two round trips but the number of weekend flights would not be changed.

The three carriers also agreed to substitute smaller airplanes for some of the flights on the Washington-San Francisco, Cleveland-Los Angeles, Chicago-San Diego, Chicago-Phoenix, New York-Phoenix routes.

The cutbacks, the airlines said, would result in a fuel savings of nearly 500,000 gallons daily.

Two motorists were taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital about 5:10 p.m. Friday after an accident at Outagamie County Trunk 00 and Oneida Street just north of Appleton.

Charles L. Herb, 29, route 1, Bonduel, had a head bump and Nancy L. Verhagen, 23, 1820 E. Pershing St., had a right leg bruise.

County police said the Verhagen car went out of control while eastbound when a car in front stopped suddenly. The Verhagen auto then collided with the westbound Herb car.

Kenneth G. Coppers, 18, 1710 S. Bluemound Drive, suffered a cut lip when his pickup truck went into a ditch and struck a culvert on Outagamie County Trunk A near County Trunk J.J., four miles north of Appleton, at 11 p.m. Friday.

He was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by ambulance. Coppers said he lost control of the truck when he swerved to avoid another vehicle.

ONEIDA — James L. Danforth reported the theft of a 12-gauge shotgun and a radio valued together at $75 from his former home at route 1, Oneida. Police said entry was gained by prying open a bathroom window.

Thefts totaling $250 were reported from a 1969 sedan at Behm Motors, 3939 W. College Ave., this week. Police said a radiator, saddle, top and bottom hose were removed, while the transmission return line was cut.

Thomas Sartor, 1134 W. Lawrence St., told Outagamie County police that the rear tires of his car were slashed this week at the Left Guard Charcoal House, 3025 W. College Ave.

A battery charge against Germaine A. Kelly, 32, 136 S. Walter Ave., was dismissed Friday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

She had been accused of taking a $1.49 package of cheese from Doering's Super Valu, 231 S. Walter Ave., on June 18.

A Dec. 13 jury trial was set Friday for Donald R. Falk, 27, 1124 W. Lawrence St., when he appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The charge stemmed from a reported disturbance last weekend at the Falk home.

A battery charge against Martin Luther, 71, 646 S. Mill St., Hortonville, was dismissed Friday by Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

The court was informed that the defendant is receiving treatment at the county health center. Luther had been accused of striking his wife several times during a Sept. 16 disturbance at home.

Daniel J. Sieger, 18, 1701 E. Lindbergh St., was fined $175 and ordered to attend group dynamics traffic safety school after he was found guilty Friday of driving while intoxicated.

A traffic charge, for driving after revocation, against Hartl was also continued to Dec. 27. The defendant was arrested at State 35 and County Trunk J, Town of Kaukauna, early Tuesday.

Bond was lowered to $5,000 and a preliminary hearing scheduled for Wednesday when Jesse Anaya, 22, of Shiocton, appeared Friday on a rape charge before Judge R. Thomas Cane in Outagamie County Court Branch 3.

The case had been taken over by Cane after Judge Nick F. Schaefer removed himself from it earlier in the day.

Cane denied a defense motion to dismiss the case for lack of probable cause shown by the complaint, which states that the defendant raped a 19-year-old Neenah woman in a farm field near Kaukauna last Sunday. Anaya's bond had been at $10,000.

the problems associated with VD. The program was originally offered at Wausau Newman and was accepted last spring in the public school system.

An alcohol awareness program has also been initiated with federal funds available to local and state Jaycee programs under "Operation Threshold."

Sheldon Hanson, state president of the Jaycees, said that local Jaycee groups are becoming involved in the program for "responsible drinking." He said people have to be made aware of their responsibilities when they drink.

A cystic fibrosis project is the group's third effort. Hanson noted that "since no government appropriation was made for cystic fibrosis research, we are attempting to raise $50,000. We have raised over $11,000." He added that he expected a considerable amount to be contributed at today's luncheon.

Jaycees have also been working for traffic safety legislation, particularly the mandatory jailing of drunken drivers and the mandatory use of seat belts.

In connection with the seat belt bill, the Jaycees have brought the "seat belt convincer" to Appleton for a free demonstration today. The "conviner," set up at Xavier High School, gave interested individuals a ride down a ramp at a speed of seven miles per hour while fastened in by a seat belt and shoulder harness.

Jaycette business will have two parts this weekend, according to Mrs. Bonnie Westlund, state president. The corporation business meeting will deal with state projects including mental health, cystic fibrosis, cerebral palsy and other handicaps. Grants from the United Jaycette Fund will be dispensed to local groups for programs for the handicapped.

The highlight of the Jaycette convention was expected to be the annual C.A.R.O.L. awards. Citations for outstanding leadership were to be presented to five women selected from 62 nominees submitted by local chapters. The presentation was to have been made at 12:30 p.m. today at the Darboy Club.

Jaycettes have participated in the Jaycee programs but also have several projects of their own. Jaycette projects during the year included a "Patch the pony" awareness program to prevent child molesting.

Jaycettes have been involved in the "red ball" program in which a red sticker is placed in the bedroom windows of the elderly, invalids and children. In case of fire, firemen are alerted by the sticker to pay particular attention to these rooms.

Planners slate public meetings

The East-Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission is scheduling 15 public meetings in communities in its 10-county area during the next six weeks to seek public support and input for its planning program.

This is the first time the year-old commission has held such public meetings, although there were public sessions held during the organization period last year.

Roy C. Willey Jr., executive director, said the commission will use the information gathered at the sessions for help in preparing its planning programs for physical, social and economic development for the region.

The hearings in this region will be Chilton High School, Oct. 23; Nicolet School, Menasha, Oct. 30; Shiocton High School, Nov. 1; Kaukauna High School, Nov. 8; Waupaca High School, Nov. 15, and Madison Junior High School, Appleton, Nov. 27. All meetings will start at 7 p.m.

All competitors will present original speeches, 10 to 15 minutes in length, prepared last spring on the county level. They are permitted to up-date the speech with current and relevant information and facts.

The topic of Lori's speech is "Landscaping," an idea she developed in communicative arts taught by Mrs. Marilyn Treichel.

On the official city map, that portion of Lehrer Lane never has been developed and the planned addition would encroach onto street right-of-way. The matter will be studied by the planning commission before recommendation to the City Council.

Neenah lawyer faces jury trial set in Shawano

SHAWANO — Attorney Robert Henke of Neenah will stand trial here Dec. 17 on a charge of being a party to perjury.

Henke, 42, of 1002 E. Forest Ave., pleaded innocent to the felony charge last week. He remains free on bond.

Circuit Court Judge James Martineau of Marinette will preside at the jury trial. He was named to the case by the state court administrator's office after Circuit Court Judge Gordon Myse of Appleton disqualified himself.

Myse was the judge at the burglary trial of Richard Peterson of Clintonville during which the alleged perjury occurred last December.

Henke was charged last May after an investigation by local officials and the state Department of Justice. Henke represented Peterson, who is serving a prison term after being found guilty of burglary charge.

Ann Landers

Introduction inappropriate

Dear Ann Landers: Please forgive me for altering some of the facts in this letter to disguise my identity, but I just can't give it to you straight.

My uncle was lieutenant governor of the state 12 years ago. Every time my husband introduces me he says, "This is my wife, Gertrude. Her uncle was the lieutenant governor." Occasionally I catch a pained "so-what" look. I want to sink through the floor. I never did care for that introduction but my husband seems to think it's appropriate.

According to him generals, senators, governors and other VIPs retain their titles even though they are no longer in office. He says it is not only correct, but pleasing. What about it, Ann? (P.S. I still don't like it.)—Just Plain Gertrude

Dear J.P.G.: It is appropriate (and pleasing, I'm sure) to call a retired officer "General" or use the title "Governor" or "Senator" after the fact, but you are none of these, so why must your husband drag your uncle into the act? Does he feel you need a build-up? Or, does he need it?

Tell him, in no uncertain terms, that you are content to be just his wife and that's the way you want to be introduced.

Dear Ann Landers: Help! Please. What is the kindest way for a young married couple with a child to tell their parents on both sides to cool it? We don't want to seem unkind or ungrateful.

How many times a day should they phone? How many Sundays in a row should be devoted to parents?

These are disturbing questions and we don't have the answers. Do you?—Had It In Ohio

Dear Ohio: No. Nobody has. It depends on a variety of things about which I know nothing. How often do they call? How long do they talk? Do they drop in uninvited? Do they invite you to their home or do they just come to yours? How long do they stay? Do they "take over" your child? Do you accept financial help from them? Expensive gifts? Favors, such as "sitting," taking the child when you go away on weekends or vacations? Does your spouse like your parents? Are they demanding, boring, tiresome? Or are they good company?

Every young married couple should sit down and think about these things and come up with answers that make sense to them.

And before you arrive at any conclusions, please remember this: You will never regret it if you put yourself out a little for your folks. Most parents have put themselves out a great deal for their children.

Dear Ann Landers: I have no tears of sympathy for that 40-year-old man who says it's too late for him to get dates. (Several girls turned him down and he was so hurt that he just gave up.)

A man always has a chance, no matter what his age. This is not true of a woman. I am 40 and have never been asked out by a normal, single man—only married men, alcoholics and homosexuals who want a "cover." Such losers are a waste of time and I refuse to be bothered. But since I'm a woman I must wait to be asked out.

I wish that 40-year-old man who feels

Participants in the program, which is sponsored by the Fox Valley Chapter of Wisconsin Citizens Concerned for Life, will be:

Mrs. Mike Ludes, Combined Locks, president of the local WCCL chapter, said more than 600 "respect for life" bracelets have been sold in the last 3 1/2 weeks and orders still are being taken for the wristbands, which are a symbolic protest to the Supreme Court's decision on abortion.

Epilepsy Foundation has data on disease

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend who has epileptic seizures which just started in the last two years. She is in her 60s.

It seems I am the one who usually is with her when she has one. I am awfully interested in knowing more about epilepsy.

Could you suggest a book I might purchase and read to learn more about it? Frankly, the seizures scare me to death. —L.E.L.

Yes, epileptic seizures are frightening to see until you understand more about the disease and about the seizures. You are very much on the right track when you want to learn more about it. Knowing the facts puts an end to the fear.

I note that although you read the San Francisco Chronicle you live in a place in Nevada that, I confess, I'd never heard of. If you were in San Francisco, or Detroit or Houston or any sizable city, I would tell you to look in the phone book and call the Epilepsy Center, which would provide you with information.

For those who aren't close enough to a center, here are some suggestions that will work:

Write to the Epilepsy Foundation of America, 1828 L. St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. The foundation has pamphlets it can send to you.

As to books, there is, frankly, a paucity of good, up-to-date books for lay people. (The technical volumes wouldn't be much use to you.)

One very good and very recent one is "The Child with Convulsions," but don't let the title mislead you into thinking it applies only to children.

It will give you a clear understanding of epilepsy. One reviewer said it was just as good for adult needs as for children's needs.

It was published in 1972, written by Henry Baird, M.D., and is written in language that lay people can follow easily. (Someone has called Baird "the Dr. Spock of epilepsy.")

Not every book store will have the book, but any dealer can order it for you. It is published by Grune & Stratton, priced at $8.50.

I understand that a paperback book on epilepsy is pending, but I have no information as to how long it will be before it is available, so I recommend Baird's book.

Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this cruel and painful disease, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy of his booklet, "Gout — the Modern Way to Stop It." Please enclose a long, self-addressed (use ZIP code), stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Foes of shredder base appeal on citizens' strength

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent staff writer

Die-hard members of a City Council and county board minority turned to a group of citizens for support Thursday in their effort to reverse board and council action establishing a solid waste shredding mill in the Northeast Industrial Park.

About 40 persons including speakers attended a meeting in the city hall's council chambers. The citizens, mostly residents of the 15th Ward and nearby Town of Grand Chute area nearest the shredder site, were urged to write letters and make phone calls to public officials and citizens, and to attend a court trial Nov. 1 that will decide an alderman's challenge to the site choice.

Attorney Alan Cain, 2728 E. Wisconsin Ave., in the town, told his neighbors, "You can be of great help if you can be at that court trial. Judges are influenced by people who are in court."

The trial is scheduled for 9 a.m. at the courthouse, before County Judge Urban Van Susteren. Ald. William Errington (15th), council representative of the ward surrounding the industrial park and shredder site, has brought the suit. It claims that the city's sale of the site to the county violates state constitutional and statutory industrial development provisions and zoning and deed restrictions aimed at protecting the quality of the industrial park.

Besides Errington, officials addressing the group included County Board Supv. Eugene Kloes of Appleton and Fred Rehfeldt, county supervisor and alderman from the 18th Ward.

They stated their own positions against the shredder program and site choice and quoted freely from other officials and some unnamed sources, none of whom were present.

There also were no representatives of the majority viewpoint present. Mrs. Sharon Wallis, 1901 N. Helen St., who served as chairman for the informal meeting, said as the two-hour session concluded that it "would be interesting to get a debate between the two factions."

While Mrs. Wallis said Errington's lawsuit "is our only hope at this point of doing anything" to stop construction of the shredder, Kloes maintained it is still possible through citizen pressure to get the board and council to reconsider. It might cost $200,000 to terminate contracts already let for the project, Kloes said, but he called that better than spending the budgeted $1.5 million.

Construction already has begun on the structure to house the Allis-Chalmers hammermill. Speakers charged that county action approving the project in 1972 set records for legislative haste and charged efforts are being made now to speed construction before the court suit is tried. Kloes called county board action last year "a railroad job of the first magnitude," and he and others claimed none of the officials involved knew what they were approving. The opponents contend the shredder will generate heavy truck traffic, attract flies, generate odor and require outside storage of waste.

They earlier failed in an effort to postpone action until a state task force reported recommendations on recycling. The task force has now reported, recommending establishment of regional recycling centers including one serving Outagamie, Winnebago and Fond du Lac counties. Rehfeldt and Ald. Bruce Stutzman (1st) have filed a council resolution asking the mayor to appoint a committee to study the state recommendations, which are already half-way through the legislature.

The shredder foes claimed a recycling region including Outagamie, Winnebago and Brown counties might produce waste in large enough volume for profitable recycling. But they described the Outagamie shredder as too small and limited in capability to serve as an element in a regional system.

Rehfeldt declared it was "my impression" from talking with Arloe Paul, vice chairman of the task force, that if the county project stopped, the state "would like it as well" as if it were completed.

Asked by citizens why the council and board took the actions they have, the speakers leveled various accusations. Kloes opined that Mayor James Sutherland "traded the garbage vote for the bridge," swapping the council's vote to put the shredder in the industrial park for board support of the Oneida Street high-level bridge project.

Errington quoted unnamed aldermen as stating, "Don't rock the boat. If Errington's got it out there, we don't have it in our ward."

Cane said he heard supervisors in the courthouse coffee shop who "were tickled pink that they had put over a good one on the city."

Kloes also charged that local and state officials have a scheme for forcing other municipalities to participate in the shredder disposal program. "It's all neatly worked out," said Kloes. "They'll close all of the landfills" operated by other municipalities.

At present, Appleton is the only municipality that has agreed to send its waste to the shredder, and then only if the city's first-year cost is less than the $3.80 per ton now spent on waste disposal at the city landfill. The state recently ordered the landfill at Mackville closed, saying it violates floodplain zoning restrictions.

The speakers charged that for the first year, federal revenue sharing funds will be applied by the county to cut costs and stay within the limit imposed by the city. "But what's it going to be the second year?" asked Rehfeldt.

Errington claimed it will cost him a year's salary as alderman to wage his court battle. He quoted "a statement that came out of the courthouse" that by delaying tactics in court, shredder supporters "thought that they could create a financial hardship on me."

Mrs. Wallis said a telephone canvass of the area had indicated as many as 300 persons, and a minimum of 100, had indicated they would attend the session. She said she was a little disappointed with the actual turnout. She and other citizens agreed a campaign to spread the opposition view must be waged before Nov. 1 to assure a large attendance for Errington's trial.

"How come our city officials are getting away with bloody murder?" she asked. "They seem to think everybody's totally in favor of it, and obviously some people aren't."

Stamppp sees 'trouble' without state pool funds

The Outagamie County social services department budget faces several "if" situations that could be resolved within the next two or three weeks, the county board's finance committee was told Thursday.

James Stamppp, social services director, said the department "could be in trouble" financially if it doesn't get state pool funds sought for next year.

He said the county should know by Nov. 1 how much extra it will get from the state. "If we don't get pool money," Stamppp said, "Madison will know where Outagamie County is."

The problem stems from the new state budget which sets social services budget limitations based on spending levels dating back as far as 18 months ago. But an additional pool of state funds was set up to aid counties that would be hurt by the limits.

Stamppp indicated that he now is within the state limits and may have a little extra in some areas. But, he said, when 1974 labor negotiations are completed by the county, he will probably be over his budget.

The state-set limits affect four categories of social services administration and the category of aid to dependent children in institutions. It does not affect the general category of Aid to Families-Dependent Children, however.

Stamppp said the allotment given Outagamie County for aid to dependent children in institutions is more than he anticipates needing.

If pool money becomes available to cover the anticipated increased labor costs, Stamppp said, it might be possible to use some of the aid to dependent children in institutions monies to reinstate the Big Brothers program.

The Big Brothers program was started earlier this year but is not included in the 1974 budget because there are no state or federal cost sharing funds available.

The total social services budget for 1974 is projected at $4,031,124. State and federal aids are estimated at $3,161,380, leaving the county's share at $869,743.

The overall budget is divided into $1,029,199 for administration, $2,168,925 for AFDC, $325,000 for medical payments and $5,000 for general relief. Slightly more than half of the administration cost is related to personnel with the rest going for various programs that are included under the administration heading.

There no longer is a county budget for old age assistance, aid to the blind or aid to the disabled. Those programs are now entirely handled at the federal level. And, the state now picks up all of the medical costs associated with the other programs.

The 1974 budget figure for medical costs is to cover medical expenses incurred during 1973 but not billed until next year, Stamppp said.

Nursing home schedules open house

CLINTONVILLE — An open house will be held Oct. 27 and 28 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day at the Viola Behling Memorial Home, 38 N. Main St.

The public is invited to see "the dream of the late Miss Behling," which is a new concept in retirement living; a restful area for dining and a lounge and an outside patio for the use of residents. The 26-bed facility has French Provincial furnishings.

Miss Behling, who died in February of 1960, stipulated in her will that an amount of her estate was to be set aside for the construction of a retirement home for the elderly citizens of Clintonville. On Sept. 15, 1973, the Viola Behling Memorial Home opened its doors as a realization of this bequest.

The Waupaca County Court had entrusted the bequest to the "Behling Memorial Home, Inc.," whose board of directors developed the plans to build the home envisioned by Miss Behling

Bids for the home were let May 1, 1972 at a total cost of $563,567. They included the low bids for the general construction to the Hoffman Co., Appleton; plumbing, Wenzel Brothers, Appleton; heating, Quality Plumbing and Heating, Clintonville, and electrical, Keller's Appliance, Clintonville; and added to the total were amounts for estimated furnishings, fees and contingency and the cost of the site.

The building is an L-shaped structure located in an area that can be described as the former front lawn of the Clintonville Community Hospital and the former A. Don Zwickey property.

Proposed budget has $3.72 tax hike

By JOHN LEE
Post-Crescent staff writer

NEW LONDON — A proposed $1.23 million budget for 1974, calling for about a $3.72 per $1,000 assessed valuation tax increase for city purposes, will be aired at a public hearing at 8 p.m. Nov. 6.

The budget, discussed by aldermen at Tuesday and Wednesday night meetings, calls for increases in most budgetary areas, but is reportedly under the 6 per cent increase limit set by the state, according to Mrs. Melva Rickaby, city clerk.

Based on an assessed valuation of $16.4 million, or less than 40 per cent of the city's equalized valuation, the city's total tax rate, including city, school, state, county and vocational taxes, is expected to drop.

The proposal lists $1,230,158 in total expenditures, and $727,072 in anticipated revenues, leaving $503,086 to be raised by local property taxes. Last year, $424,252 was raised locally by property taxes.

Costs for general government will rise to $217,180, over a 10 per cent increase from last year's $188,393.

The area, which includes money for administrative personnel and equipment, has raised because of some increased costs for supplies and equipment, and other items such as insurance, employee retirement and elections.

But raises to aldermen, the mayor and city attorney are also included in that account. City Council expenses will jump $2,750, to $13,050, caused by an additional $300 a year aldermen voted themselves for expenses, raising their monthly pay from $60 to $85.

The mayor's salary, as of May 1, will be $3,600 instead of $2,220 a year, and the city attorney's salary, raised from $271 a month to $500, will also go up May 1.

City hall employees, including the director of public works, his secretary and secretaries in the clerk-treasurer's office, received 6 per cent cost of living increases.

Protection of persons and property, which includes costs for police and fire protection, inspections and other services, will raise about $19,000, to $203,567.

Six per cent increases for police officers' salaries and the addition of five more men to the fire department, account for most of that increase.

The proposed budget for health, welfare and sanitation, which includes welfare, landfill and sewage treatment plant accounts, will drop sharply, from last year's $108,924 to a proposed $84,948, due in part to a $13,000 savings in the sewage treatment plant. Phosphorus removal chemicals are estimated to cost $8,500 this year, compared with last year's estimate of $27,000. Costs for operating the sanitary landfill are estimated at $11,744, about $3,000 less than last year, when the landfill costs rose because a new site was being prepared.

Transportation costs, including street maintenance and snow removal, will increase slightly, from $207,420 to a proposed $245,964. Increases include $3,500 worth of crushed stone, for a total of $23,900, a slight increase to $20,000 for street oiling, and an increase, from $10,000 to $12,000, for snow and ice removal.

Education and recreation costs will raise about $5,800, to $67,733, caused by increases of $3,000 in the library's operational costs, $500 for the museum, and $2,000 more for parks and playgrounds.

Conservation and development costs, for industrial development, elm disease eradication, ordinance upkeep and the regional planning commission, will increase from $2,000 to $3,100, caused by a $500 jump in Dutch Elm eradication costs and a $600 cost for ordinance upkeep.

The city's indebtedness will increase $50,000, to $183,232, caused by a doubling, from $25,000 to $50,000, on principal payments for the $975,000 bond issue, and a $24,000 principal payment for New London utility notes. Interest costs will raise from $72,866 to $73,911.

Brillion High given organ

BRILLION — A new electronic organ, a gift to the school from Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Peters of Brillion, will make its official debut in Veterans Day services at 10:30 a.m. Monday at the high school.

The organ will also join with the orchestra in accompaniment to the Brillion High School presentation of "The Sound of Music" Thursday through Saturday. The organ will be dedicated at a public concert in February featuring Michael Kaehr, vocal music director, at the console.

Peters, who has given many other gifts to the community, is chairman of the board of Brillion Iron Works.

Unclassified accounts, such as tax refunds and grants and aids, will be at $3,300, up just $100, and public service enterprises, for the operation of the cemetery, will increase slightly to $16,561.

Expenditures for outlay will jump $60,000 to a proposed $204,222, with $10,000 estimated costs for an emergency ambulance service subsidy, and $52,200 in anticipated costs that are earmarked for the Pershing Road sanitary sewer.

Revenues are estimated at $727,072, compared with last year's total of $647,552.

Last year's tax rate for city purposes was $26.93 per $1,000 assessed valuation, with this year's rate estimated at $30.65 per $1,000 by Mrs. Rickaby.

The Nov. 6 City Council meeting will start at 7:30 p.m., with the public hearing on the proposed budget set for 8 p.m.

Rural Fremont youth killed as tractor tips

DALE — A 16-year-old boy who early this year won a tractor driving award was killed Friday night when the borrowed tractor he was operating tipped into a ditch a mile from his route 1, Fremont, home.

Guy Russell Gauthier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gauthier, was dead on arrival at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Appleton. Death resulted from severe head injuries, according to Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps.

The boy's death hikes the county traffic toll to 33, compared with 17 a year ago and raises the state toll to 912 compared with 937 a year ago.

County police said Gauthier was alone on a tractor northbound on Shaky Lake Road, a mile north of U.S. 10, when the accident occurred about 6:30 p.m.

The tractor tipped onto its side, pinning Gauthier, after going into a three-foot-deep ditch along the east side of the road.

A girl living nearby discovered the accident. Another tractor was used to pull the machine off Gauthier. The Dale rescue squad also was summoned.

The 1973 tractor was owned by Dale Sommers, route 1, Fremont.

The boy had won a tractor driving award in a contest sponsored by Future Farmers of America, his father said.

Gauthier, who moved from Menasha with his family a year ago, was a junior at New London High School. He was one of five children.

Funeral arrangements are being handled through Borchardt and Moder Funeral Home, New London.

William Cowart, 23, of Lexington, Ky., died Friday in a Milwaukee hospital of injuries he suffered Thursday when a car in which he was riding collided with a truck at a downtown intersection.

Ralph F. Kraby, 52, of rural Westby, died Friday when his pickup truck crashed beside a Crawford County highway.

Theft and embezzlement admitted by former school district employe

WAUPACA — Mary Barnhart, 26, route 2, former employe of the Unified School District and secretary to the superintendent, admitted guilt in four counts of theft by embezzlement totaling $23,265.76 when she appeared Friday before Judge Nathan Wiese, County Court Branch 2.

Judge Wiese ordered a pre-sentence investigation by the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services, and set Miss Barnhart's sentencing for 9 a.m., Nov. 13.

The $25,000 property bond was continued.

Dist. Atty. Gerald K. Anderson presenting the criminal charges advised the court that the 10 counts of obtaining property by fraud and 10 counts of forgery with which the defendant was charged at her arraignment on Aug. 21, had been consolidated into four counts of theft by embezzlement.

The charges include:

Count 1, covering a period between July 1, 1972 and June 30, 1973, when the defendant issued or altered 62 checks drawn on the district's general fund in the total amount of $15,087.93.

Count 2, covering the period from July 1, 1972 and June 30, 1973, when six checks were drawn on the district's building fund, in the sum of $684.50.

Count 3, covering a period of July 1, 1973, to Aug. 7, 1973, when 25 checks were drawn on the district's general fund in the sum of $5,387.57.

Count 4, covering the period from July 1, 1972 through June 30, 1973 when 37 checks, unauthorized, unrecorded, or altered checks were drawn in the sum of $3,105.76.

Upon conviction, counts one and three each carry a penalty of not more than $10,000 fine, or prison for not more than 15 years, or both.

Counts two and four each carry a penalty of not more than a $5,000 fine, or prison for not more than five years, or both.

The state's single witness was Elmer Timm, Certified Public Accountant, who has audited the district's books for the past 10 years.

Timm testified that he had conducted a special audit when it became apparent through checks and vouchers that there had been unauthorized transactions. In an extensive audit he gathered evidence, including checks missing from the school records, photocopies of checks which had been processed through the Farmers State Bank and First National Bank, Waupaca; the First National Bank, Stevens Point, and the Farmers and Merchants Bank, Weyauwega, and certain school vouchers.

He told the court that a number of checks had been made to Mary E. Barnhart, cashed and deposited in her personal account. When the checks were returned to the school they were removed by the defendant and the payee changed to a variety of payees.

A number of checks, he told the court, could not be located because they had been removed from the bank statements. They were verified by Timm through bank records.

The special audit also disclosed that there was a total of undeposited receipts in the amount of $107,418.73, among them a check in the amount of $103,000 for school aids, which had not been recorded by the defendant. They were not illegally cashed by her, but unaccounted for and the school has now received the total amount.

School authorities assisted with the special audit.

Timm was asked if he had found any information leading him to believe that anyone other than Mary Barnhart had been involved in the embezzlement.

Timm answered, "I have no such evidence."

Following Timm's testimony, Miss Barnhart, through her attorney, confessed that the evidence as presented was correct.

Rep. Sanasarian raps large oil companies

BY DON CASTONIA

Post-Crescent staff writer

There is a concerted effort by the major oil companies to eliminate the independent service station and to control the sale of gasoline from the wellhead to the nozzle.

This charge was leveled Thursday night by State Rep. Harout O. Sanasarian, D-Milwaukee, chairman of the Assembly Commerce and Consumer Affairs Committee and author of two bills to regulate oil company activities in Wisconsin.

Speaking to the Fox Cities Retail Gasoline Dealers Association, Sanasarian said it appears that the major oil companies are dividing the state into zones of influence with the object of assuring that only company-owned and operated stations remain.

The fuel shortage is a manufactured crisis, he claimed. "There is blatant discrimination of prices and manipulation of product!" he said.

He said his committee has found the oil companies "totally uncooperative" in its efforts to gather information. "It is not on my committee, but the Public Service Commission and the agriculture committee have indicated they cannot get any cooperation," he said.

One of Sanasarian's bills would require the oil companies and the fuel distributors to register with the PSC and report the amount of fuel available in the state. The governor would be able to use this information during time of crisis to allocate fuel, Sanasarian said.

The second bill would prohibit oil companies and wholesalers from having any interest in retail service stations.

Sanasarian said there is evidence that the oil companies are limiting gasoline supplies to independent retailers while giving unlimited supplies to company-owned stations; that the oil companies charge independent dealers more for gasoline than they do their own stations; and that the oil companies have terminated and changed "what should be inviolable leases."

Noting that Standard Oil will sell gasoline to Outagamie County for 3.5 cents per gallon less than it charges its independent stations, Sanasarian said "this is price discrimination for vicious reasons."

He said that while the retail dealers have started to react against the oil companies, the distributors have been slow to take a position. "They don't recognize that they will be bumped off after the retailers," Sanasarian said.

Several distributors in the audience questioned whether the registration proposal was necessary, saying that most of the information being sought was already available on monthly reports they have to file with the state Department of Revenue.

They also expressed the fear that they would end up under the control of the Public Service Commission.

Sanasarian said there was a problem of getting together at one point the information needed and that it was felt that the PSC was the logical agency to gather the information since it already dealt with other energy forms. He added that his bill limits the PSC's authority to information gathering.

Sex discrimination bill hearing draws crowd

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Opponents of an equal rights amendment accused the Wisconsin legislature Friday of trying to sneak the proposal through a back door.

Joyce Walsh of Madison, who has appeared at controversial hearings dealing with abortion and treating minors for venereal disease, said equal rights legislation will lead to destruction of the family unit.

She testified before the Senate Governmental and Veterans Affairs Committee on a bill to eliminate references to gender in state statutes.

About 100 women, appearing to be equally divided on the issue, showed up for the hearing.

Rep. Marjorie Miller, D-Madison, said the bill does not involve a proposed rights amendment to the Wisconsin Constitution, which was defeated in April in a referendum.

"Most people appearing against this bill are against it because they connected it with the equal rights amendment," she said. "That position is understandable, but regrettable."

Mrs. Miller said claims that women would be drafted, would be forced to support their families financially, and share public toilets with men are untrue.

"This bill won't do all that the proponents want, and it doesn't do the things opponents fear that it will do," Mrs. Miller said.

The bill, designed to eliminate statutory discrimination based on sex, has passed the Assembly 68-29.

Mrs. Walsh said the bill originally was intended to be a companion measure to the equal rights amendment.

She said legislative action on the bill shows "contempt for the intelligence of Wisconsin citizens and gross arrogance on the part of our elected officials."

because voters have already rejected the amendment 482,000-419,000.

Mrs. R.B. Brinsmode of Madison testified the bill would eventually force women out of their homes and into un-safe jobs.

"I wonder when women are sweeping the streets like they do in Russia whether support of this equality argument will hold up," she said.

If the bill becomes law, a woman could be charged with rape and a man with prostitution. A woman could be sued by her husband for non-support, officials have said.

It would be illegal to deny housing on the basis of race, religion, nationality or sex.

Widowers as well as widows would be eligible for public employee retirement benefits earned by the deceased spouse.

Credit card donations to church permitted

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A Roman Catholic church here has started accepting credit cards in lieu of cash donations.

The Coronation of the Blessed Virgin Mary Church launched the plan Sunday as a means of boosting its income.

Paul Totaro, a member of the church's finance committee, said credit cards aid parishioners in budgeting fixed amounts for church contributions.

"A church can't survive on 50-cent donations and that's often all that's left in people's pockets on a Sunday after a week of paying bills," he said.

With credit cards, many church members have begun making gifts of $15 to $30, Totaro said.

The Rev. Eugene Raydan, pastor, said the credit cards help people include the church in their general array of financial responsibilities.

He said that in this way, people come to think of the church as a regular obligation, much like a grocery bill, telephone charge or bank payment.

Whither Chile?

The coup that overthrew the unsteady Marxist regime of Salvador Allende had the backing of many Chilean moderates. The largest political party, the Christian Democrats, endorsed the coup and gave it at least tacit backing.

But second thoughts are developing.

Even the day after Allende's death — officially a suicide although certainly there is the obvious possibility that he was murdered — Roman Allegría, a party official, warned that the generals would have to restore democracy soon in Chile or the Christian Democrats would turn around. "Without us, they cannot stay in power."

Such fallacies have occurred in other nations which have encouraged or aided and abetted military coups. In fact there were even a lot of non-Nazi Germans who once quietly endorsed Adolf Hitler as a reasonable alternative to communism.

In all fairness, there is a certain necessity to restore order out of chaos before very much in the way of establishing reform can take place. Certain elements instigate violence merely for the sake of continued disorder. It is part of various totalitarian aspirants' strategy to keep things in such a turmoil that the application of heavy-handed order will be welcomed. That is to a large extent what has happened in Chile and in other Latin American countries such as Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Argentina and Brazil.

But the Chilean generals have said little about social reform or economic development. The reports of mass arrest, executions and the systematic and casual terrorism of the very poor continue to seep through the strict censorship of news.

It just may be that when the moderates decide they have had enough they'll also discover that the military doesn't need them any longer and is quite willing to go it alone. It's happened before.

Creative publicity by DNR

Editorial staffs of newspapers and other members of the communications media are, in the nature of governmental press agency, the most regular targets of the prolific American bureaucracy. News editors and others have often invited the composers of the generous sheafs of publicity material dispatched to them from governmental offices to visit a news room on a typical day to ponder the enormous aggregate of gratuitous material civil servant authors are paid to prepare and no doubt believe will be accepted gratefully.

The unfortunate truth is that most of such material is promptly dispatched to the waste basket, and to that extent tax dollars are being wasted.

With that necessary explanation, the men who work in the information division of the state Department of Natural Resources at Madison deserve applause for the extraordinarily high quality of writing and editing, and the attractive range of material and style of presentation in the current edition of the monthly information bulletin of the agency that is published in magazine format.

Like other publishers, the department tries to schedule editorial content with some relation to the passing of the seasons, current events and problems, and other considerations that tend to govern the interests of its readers.

But the new Wisconsin Conservation Bulletin is noteworthy also for the quality of writing of its contributors, and the number of reports and essays containing factual material and historical reviews that most serious-minded outdoorsmen and environmentally concerned persons will be inclined to save for ready reference.

With the deer hunting season nearing, one encyclopedic feature article relates truly what its headline promises — everything a Wisconsin person wants to know about deer. Informative essays on the grouse, the queen of the game bird species of Wisconsin, the prolific and too little understood aspen that clothes millions of acres of Wisconsin forest land, and similarly thoughtful pages on the satisfactions of the deer hunt even when the trophy buck proves to be too elusive for the stalker, and a statistical summary of game fish of record size taken in this state make the edition a collector's item for those thousands who are fortunate subscribers.

To the department administrators, a salute for recruiting editors of its public information service of such taste and enterprise. To those editors, a respectful bow from admiring contemporaries.

Solving the amnesty problem

It has been apparent that any move in this country toward amnesty must await either a different administration in Washington or more pressure for it from the public now that our active participation in Vietnam is over. But new regulations in Canada may supply that action.

Last summer Canada stipulated that aliens who had been in that country since last November could come forward, make themselves known and generally be allowed to stay without any penalty for their previous illegal status. Officials had estimated that there were as many as 200,000 aliens living illegally in Canada. Antiwar groups in the United States figure that perhaps 50,000 may be American draft dodgers or deserters. There are other Americans too who move to Canada. Some 23,000 took out papers to become citizens last year.

But far fewer aliens than expected have accepted the offer of the Manpower and Immigration Department. Canada does take a tough line with any who have law violations on their records. Since pot accompanied much of the culture of the young United States citizens who vehemently opposed the war probably a number of them have been convicted on minor drug charges.

President Nixon has changed his approach on amnesty from one of tolerance to the hard line which he apparently thought more palatable to his silent majority. Since his own troubles erupted, the subject has hardly been mentioned. But eventually it must surface.

Real leadership in Washington would note the extensive dissent over the war that existed in the country and find a way to allow the real conscientious objectors to come home, with other government service an alternative to the military.

Endorsement policy tied with finances

MADISON — When David Sullivan, the articulate and aggressive new chairman of the battered state Republican party, was asked recently why he wants to continue the pre primary Republican convention endorsement rule for state candidate nominations in open primaries, his response was immediate, succinct, and candid:

"Without it," he said in effect, "we won't be able to raise any money."

Although his involvement in Wisconsin party politics is comparatively new, he is aware that the endorsement question is moot with respect to the practical political problems that led to the creation of the so-called "Republican voluntary" committee and its labors to identify the regulars in the long-ago days of LaFollette insurgency.

What he is now saying is that if this practical political device of recruiting effective candidates and supporting them realistically in an era of virtually unlimited campaign expenditure costs and sophisticated, highly organized, and well-financed Democratic incumbents and other rivals is abandoned, the task of rebuilding the Wisconsin Republican apparatus will be more difficult and doubtful.

Worrying about debt

What he is saying also is that without such tangible purposes, he will probably have little hope of effectively soliciting funds to retire the enervating debt that now confronts him so ominously.

There are yet other considerations. Campaign funding does not always follow political ideology. Democrats now holding power in Wisconsin politics, in Madison as well as in Washington, have lately been able to lure contributions from many of the sources that backed Republicans during the days of GOP authority.

Gov. Patrick Lucey spoke casually the other day about the likelihood that a truly competitive campaign for nomination and election to the governorship of this state requires about $600,000. One of his advisers has tentatively suggested legislation permitting up to $550,000. Organized labor is the single most important logistical support of Wisconsin Democrats, and that means money as well as precinct canvassing power.

Sens. Gaylord Nelson and William Proxmire get Republican money — or more expressly — money from Republican contributors because they have shown that they can win and because the conventional assumption is that they will continue to prosper at the polls.

Is there anyone in sight today, or likely to be in sight next June, who will be able to compete on the Republican ballot on reasonably equal terms with such entrenched Democratic incumbents, left to his own fund raising devices? Even if the prospects for winning the governorship or a U. S. Senate are not good, as they probably are not, the challenging party must make the best effort it can, or risk further weakening. The independent voter — whose tribe is flourishing — wants truly serious competition among the partisans.

Notwithstanding, the idea of convention slate making is distasteful to many persons, including Republicans. Many persons make a good case when they assert that convention formation of a party slate makes for a "cut and dried" situation that leaves priceless publicity opportunities and ideological exposure to the rival party which will again have at least some statewide free primary competition.

At La Crosse last summer, the Republican delegate convention clearly had reservations about convention slate-making. It is one of the worst kept secrets in state politics, moreover, that the line of aspirants for the Republican ticket of 1974 is extremely short.

Considering all such factors, some Republican loyalists who have reflected deeply have concluded that they may be required to devise a realistic alternative, and preserve the name without the game. One proposal now being reviewed earnestly would preserve the concept of responsible convention recommendations to the primary election voters, but waive endorsement in 1974 with the idea of reviving it in 1978.

Thus would the loyalty of the responsible partisans including contributors be retained, without the need for committing scanty resources, or incurring more painful debt on behalf of a slate that may be difficult to organize credibly next year.

Hard road ahead for Laotian coalition

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A long, hard road is seen ahead for leaders of the Vientiane government and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao as they attempt to rule by coalition despite the failure of similar alliances in 1957 and 1962.

Veteran observers speculate that the newly-reached compromise accord allowing pro-Communist Pathet Lao to share the reins with the Vientiane anti Reds may result in a paralysis of government.

The accord sets up three major governmental agencies to be divided equally between Vientiane and the Pathet Lao. But 80 per cent of Laos' 91,000 square miles and one third of its nearly three million people remain in territory controlled by the Pathet Lao. Many predict that these people will continue to be administered for some time from the Pathet Lao capital of Sam Neua.

Want to try peace

The accord reached by the two sides on Sept. 14 seems to be based on the theory that both sides, after nearly 20 years of sporadic civil war, would rather try almost anything than continue fighting.

The coalition will be headed by 72-year-old Prince Souvanna Phouma who was prime minister of the old neutralist government. One of Souvanna's two deputies will be his half brother Prince Souphanouvong, titular head of the Pathet Lao.

The new coalition has one thing going for it. Unlike the two previous alliances that failed, it has the blessings of the United States. Washington has pledged cooperation, assistance and adherence to the peace pact.

The accord calls for withdrawal of all foreign forces from Laos within 60 days of the formation of the coalition. That will mean departure of about 200 American military experts and about 10,000 U.S.-paid Thai mercenaries. The future of some 40,000 North Vietnamese troops also in Laos is less certain.

Capital neutralized

The accord also calls for neutralization of Vientiane and the royal capital of Luang Prabang, seat of King Savang Vatthana to whom both sides vow loyalty.

Prince Souvanna seems to be confident that the coalition will work. He reportedly believes that his half-brother is not really a Communist and that they can work together once Souphanouvong is away from North Vietnamese influence.

The United States has offered to continue its economic aid to Laos which has been running about $50 million a year.

Tourists increasing

VIENNA (AP) — Month after month, increasing numbers of tourists are flocking to Vienna, which is considered one of the world's most beautiful cities. Statistics just published by the Press and Information Service of the Austrian capital indicate that the number of overnight stops by foreign guests in April 1973 was 14.7 per cent above the figure for April of last year.

A total of 279,000 people from other countries stayed in Vienna last April compared with 243,943 in April 1972.

Rocky, Ted don't need to steal

You may have noticed that, while there was great glee in journalistic circles, the downfall of Spiro Agnew brought a distinctly muted response from politicians. Partly this was instinctive tribal loyalty: "We cannibals don't eat each other." But it also reflected the meditative theme that must have suffused most politicians: "There but for the grace of God go I."

To say this is not to imply that most politicians are crooks — in my experience they are in fact somewhat above the national average for honesty. This may not be founded on spiritual considerations — the late President Johnson, discussing an accusation against someone he knew well, remarked flatly, "He's too smart to steal." (The charge proved to be false.) But, however motivated, men in public life tend to be extremely circumspect.

Farm state senator

The real difficulties arise from the ambiguities of political spending, and the relationship between favors and benefactions. Let us take a hypothetical Senator from a farm state. In the course of his political career, which began perhaps in the State Legislature, he has developed close personal ties with the farm interests. It was not a question of "buying" his vote — he was going to vote with them as a matter of conviction in any case. It's simply that he and his family have over the years become close personal friends with some of the big agricultural entrepreneurs.

Arriving in Washington as a new Senator (with no inherited wealth), he needs a big house for his large family and immediately learns that — unless he is willing to move practically to the outskirts of Richmond or Baltimore — prices are astronomical. At this point one of his friends comes to the rescue with a large, interest-free loan, and he settles into a $125,000 home in Spring Valley. (Before you sneer, let me note that if my house — for which I paid about $40,000 — could miraculously be planted in Spring Valley, it would sell for at least $125,000.)

Say the interest-free loan was $100,000 — in net terms, at current interest rates, this amounts to a gift of $9 to $10,000. The Senator is, of course, grateful. Though there is absolutely no justification for suggesting that his gratitude influences his voting on farm issues. Question: Is there any element of corruption in this transaction?

Let us take another instance, further down the line. A Congressman from a large district receives a total of $40,000 in campaign funds. Like the Senator, he neglected to choose rich parents or marry a rich wife, so off he goes on the campaign trail, wearing out shoes, clothing, and his car in the process. He replaces these items from campaign funds. In addition, he combines a wedding reception for his daughter with a reception for his big contributors, most of whom are personal friends. This too is charged off to the campaign; the rationale being that the presence of his daughter, her new husband, and a few extras did not alter the political character of the gathering.

Potomac Fever

One dependable source of fuel is the Pentagon — it's always turning the heat on Congress to sweat out more defense spending.

The Arab breakthrough is expected to liberate the Suez from Israel and Nixon from Watergate.

Nixon urged householders to save heat by lowering thermostats four degrees while his own homes are getting the third degree.

The Supreme Court rejected the administration's effort for a fast ruling on impounded funds. Go slow — the money you save is not your own.

Make a mascot and attach it with cord

BY CAPPY DICK

A mascot to hang on an over-the-shoulder purse is fun to prepare. It is bound to attract the attention of schoolmates.

The mascot may be a picture of an animal, a cutout of a recording star or TV personality, or it might be a very small stuffed animal or a tiny doll. Attach it to the purse with a piece of colored cord used for gift wrapping.

If you use a cutout of a performer, paste it on cardboard to give it substance. If you choose to draw a picture of an animal or a person, cut it out after the art work has been finished, paste it on cardboard and attach a cord to it.

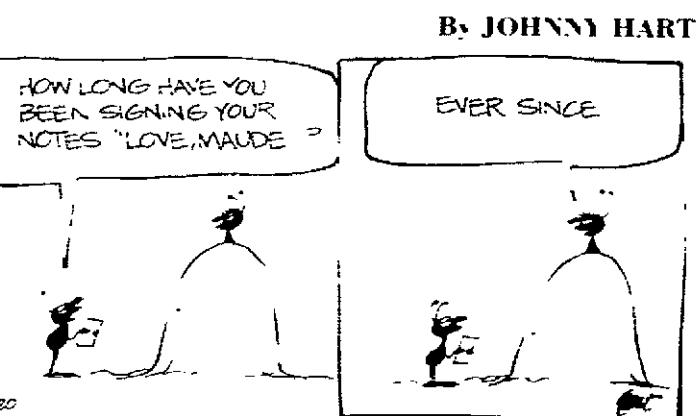

If you choose to use a small doll or a little stuffed animal, the task of attaching it is easy. Simply tie one end of the cord to the neck of the doll and the other end to the purse strap.

Try to select a mascot that will be typical of your interests, or that is in keeping with the character of the purse. For example, if the purse is fringed like a Western pouch, you may decide to attach a cutout of your favorite Western TV character as your mascot.

Monday...lots more good fun for every boy and girl!

Perry's basket helps Bucks win

TROIT (AP) — "I'm very disintegrated. Especially since we have to go to the road for five games," said a frustrated Ray Scott Friday night.

Detroit Pistons coach's team had lost 96-94 to the Milwaukee Bucks last night. Perry took a feed from Abdul-Jabbar to score with 21 seconds to go for the Bucks' fourth victory in five starts.

"Abdul-Jabbar was outstanding," said Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello. "His shot was sharp and crisp and he set the screen for the winning basket."

Costello said the Bucks had won the National Basketball Association championship for the first time in 1957. They are averaging 94 points on offense and 84 on defense.

"I thought we played excellent basketball. Especially in the last three quarters when we didn't let Detroit get a chance," said Costello.

The Pistons are a very improved

Wolves clinch share of conference title

MANAWA — Steve Lowmyer scored 23 points and ran for 163 yards in the conference this season.

Little Chute can gain a share of the title by defeating Weyauwega in its season finale today at Legion Park, Little Chute. The only blot on the Chute record is a scoreless tie with Manawa.

Lowmyer scored in the second period on a 34-yard run and in the third on a 45-yard jaunt. Manawa's two other TDs were scored by Steve Kragh on a 37-yard run in the second stanza and one-yard burst in the third. Ed Klotzbuecher kicked two PATs.

Lowmyer carried only 11 times in gaining his 163 yards.

Bonduel scored the next TD on a 12-yard pass from Klotzbuecher. Lowmyer capped the first half with a 30-yard run and Klotzbuecher's run for the points after it 22-0 at the end of the opening half.

Bonduel defended the stout Manawa line for 12 first downs and 232 yards. He scored until the third period when Klotzbuecher caught a 30-yard pass from Klotzbuecher for a touchdown, only to be stopped by a 10-16 yard punt from Klotzbuecher.

Elmo Beaty keys Utah win over Indiana

Beaty proved to be a quick study Friday night.

He was holding out for a contract of $100,000 a year. He then went to Indiana to pace the team to a 101-96 victory over the Pacers.

Turn of events came after Utah manager Vince Boryla issued a statement last month that the six-year-old star would no longer play for the team and that the Stars were filing a lawsuit against Beaty.

Beaty's return was so sudden that the team manager did not have enough time to sew his name on the back of his jersey.

After ABA games, the New York Jets defeated the Memphis Tams 101-98. Kentucky Colonels overpowered the Virginia Cougars 121-109. The Virginia Cougars snapped a five-game losing streak by beating the San Antonio Spurs 101-98. Denver beat San Diego 101-98.

101, Tams 88.

Let's discouraging at times," said the Jets' new coach Butch Van Breda. "After losing to the Jets, I can't dream all the time. Tonight, I don't want to scream at all. I've got to get some of the good things we do."

Some good things included John Elmo Beaty's 20-point performance and an

OSHKOSH — "A plain, old-fashioned gut effort."

That's how Appleton West Coach Paul Engen described the Terrors' come-from-behind, 10-7 victory over Oshkosh North Friday night in a crucial Fox Valley Association football game.

The win in the drama-laden game catapults West (4-1-1) into first place and leaves the Terrors just one victory away from their first FVA title. The school has not won a grid championship since 1963 when Chuck McKee and Gary Hietpas led the Ade Dillon coached club to the Fox River Valley Conference crown.

Engen, Dillon's successor, said, "I am really proud of the way they responded when they were down, 7-0." Indeed the outlook couldn't have been much darker for AHS-W in the early going. The crowd of more than 4,000 had hardly gotten settled in Titan Stadium when North's Bruce Nemschoff exploded through the right side of the line and sprinted 68 yards for a touchdown. When Scott Metz added the extra point, the defending co-champions led, 7-0, with the game only 3:24 old.

Then, the Terrors showed their mettle as seldom before. The Kevin Donahue-led offense took charge in the next 10 minutes, 5 seconds to put 10 points on the board. Meanwhile, there were destined to be no more lapses for the alert and aggressive Terror defenders as they blanked the dangerous Spartans (now 4-2 in the FVA) for the final 44:36 of play.

Heroic efforts abounded on this relatively mild October evening, but none stood out more than those produced by Terrors Kurt Christensen, Mike Burke and Tom Bauman. Christensen booted a 32-yard field goal with NFL accuracy and boomed a number of vital punts that kept West out of trouble in the gruelling second half going.

Burke, a sophomore playing in his first varsity game, scored AHS-W's only touchdown on a 4-yard burst and gained a total of 29 yards. Bauman, who was unable to practice all week and had his bad knee drained the day before the game, made a win-preserving interception on the West 6-yard line with 45 seconds remaining.

West has overcome more than the usual number of injury problems. Engen reports that no fewer than 32 members of the 61-player varsity have been out with an injury at some time this season.

The Terrors had no monopoly on gutsy performances. The Spartans' Steve Schmid, wearing a special protector for the broken nose he suffered in last week's game, punched out 30 hard-earned yards on the ground in the second half after sitting out the first 24 minutes.

Among West defensive standouts were Andy Kangas, Andy Ertl, Scott Taylor, Scott Weishoff and Jerry Schimmelpfennig. Mike Helf led West rushers, with 50 yards, while Jeff Wieckert added 44. Engen said Wieckert "played the best game of his career." He also lauded the leadership and running ability of Donahue (who rushed for 35 yards).

Happy though he was ("it's a tremendous feeling"), Engen wasn't ready to claim any championship. "They (the Terrors) have to realize they still have a fine club (Menasha) to play next week," he cautioned.

Failing to move after the game opening kickoff, West punted to the North 27. Two cracks by Nemschoff netted five yards. Then he drove off the right side, slipped away from a couple of defenders and outran the rest for a stunning early lead.

Undaunted, the visitors retaliated with a 45-yard drive from their own 40 into field goal range. Helf and Wieckert did all the ball-carrying behind authoritative blocking. With 4:56 left in the initial quarter, Christensen toed his 33-yard field goal.

After three fruitless plays, North was forced to give up the ball again...and a short punt gave West good position on the Terror 48. The Terrors covered the remaining 52 yards in 12 plays, one of which was an 11-yard, Donahue-to-Doug Schmidt pass (one of the only two aerials West tried all night). The rest of the yardage was supplied on runs by Helf, Burke and Donahue. On the TD play, from the 4, Donahue ran along the line before handing off to Burke, who ripped through the left side into the end zone. Christensen's kick made it 10-7 with 10:31 left in the half.

Outside of Nemschoff's TD gallop, the Spartans gained only 28 first-half yards. West owned the ball for 30 plays, while North managed only 15.

Trying to establish quick second-half momentum, the Spartans posted two first downs after the kickoff, then reached the West 36 on three more plays. But, on fourth-and-4, the Terrors rose up and gang-tackled Schmid for a 1-yard loss.

North kept banging away and reached the West 28 with 2:29 left in the game. But, on a fourth-and-2 play, Schmid bugged the Terror line just a trifle but fell inches short of a first down.

Can defense check Rams?

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) —The Green Bay Packers, hoping to remain within hailing distance of Minnesota in the National Football Conference Central Division race, face the unbeaten Rams Sunday at Los Angeles.

The Packers are 2-1-2, the Vikings 5-0, and the Rams, who lead the league's West, are also 5-0.

Green Bay's defense, ranked second in the NFL this week and giving up an average of 225 yards per game, will be severely tested by a Ram offense that leads the league with an average gain of 360 yards per game.

Ram quarterback John Hadl tops the NFC in passing with 50 completions in 74 attempts, a 67.6 percentage, and has thrown 12 touchdown passes, eight to the league's leading scorer, wide receiver Harold Jackson.

"The best thing you can do about Jackson is keep him from catching the ball," Packer safety Jim Hill said hopefully. "We have to play our kind of defense, though. By that I mean we have to knock people down and cause fumbles and interceptions like we've always tried to do."

Hill, who played with Hadl for four years in San Diego, said he and the other three members of the Packer secondary, Ken Ellis, Willie Buchanan and Al Matthews, "can't go out there in a daze just thinking about Jackson. If we do Jack Snow will run wild on the other side. They also have some backs who can catch the ball."

The Packers expect to be without offensive tackle Bill Hayhoe, and may get less than a full game from running back John Brockington.

Scott Hunter, who suffered a bruised breastbone last week, was scheduled to

Brillion '11' whip Irish

BRILLION—With Tom Mullins leading the way, the Brillion Lions gained at least a share of the Olympian Conference title with a victory over the Freedom Irish here Friday night.

The Lions got an early jump on the Irish on the second play of the game as Mullins ran 65 yards for a Brillion TD. The PAT attempt was successful as Shorty Biedenbender lofted a pass to Dale Behnke.

In the second period it was Mullins again as he went over from the two. Biedenbender's kick was good for the extra point.

Third quarter action saw Jeff Cross run for 12 yards for the third Brillion TD, and again it was Biedenbender kicking the extra point.

Mullins again showed his abilities in the final stanza as he took the ball 37 yards to the fourth and final Lion touchdown of the night. Biedenbender kicked the extra point once again.

Brillion gained 341 total yards on the ground, as Freedom only totaled 101.

Series resumes today

The sixth game of the World Series begins today at 3 p.m. CDT at Oakland. The Mets hold a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series and can finish off the A's with a win.

Tom Seaver is expected to start on the mound for New York. Jim "Catfish" Hunter will be the probable starting pitcher for Oakland.

"John may be able to play, but he really hasn't made much progress this week," Packer Coach Dan Devine said. "If he doesn't play, Perry Williams will take his place."

Devine said the Ram game "could be a pivotal game for us. This is definitely the toughest challenge our defense has 5-yard penalty. Resheske went to the air again, but Bauman picked off the long throw. The 5-7 defensive star legged it back 28 yards to the 34...and the Terrors were just one play from their biggest win in the 5-year Engen era.

Hill feels the game may be as big for the Rams as for the Packers.

"You know they haven't been in the playoffs for a long time in Los Angeles," he said. "We're bound to be a big date on their schedule. You're going to see two very hungry teams out there Sunday."

Papermakers bow to Oshkosh West, 9-3

By PETE VERCAUTEREN

KIMBERLY — Taking advantage of several Kimberly mistakes, Oshkosh West built a 9-0 third quarter margin and hung on to post a 9-3 Fox Valley Association victory here Friday night.

Following a scoreless first quarter the Indians marched 75 yards in 19 plays before stalling on Kimberly's 19 yard line where Larry Tesch split the uprights to give the visitors a 3-0 edge. Indian work horse, mini back Al Potratz accounted for 44 line thrusts. A 28 yard pass completion from quarterback Bruce Discher to right end Tom Mugerauer kept the momentum going.

Kimberly's Randy Van Hout returned Tesch's kickoff 26 yards to the Papermaker 41 and the Kims produced a time-consuming drive of their own.

Utilizing 13 rushing plays and a single pass connection the Papermakers drove to the Indian one yard stripe but Van Hout right end sweep was stacked up by Tesch and Mugerauer.

Neither team displayed much offensive punch in their first two possessions following the second half kickoff but West received a golden scoring opportunity when Kimberly's second punt attempt backfired.

With Van Hout standing on his own 25 yard line the snap from center sailed over his head and West recovered on the 20.

Potratz, the conference's second most productive rusher, claimed 16 of the yards on two end sweeps and running mate Randy Hartman blasted over for the final four yards to paydirt. Tesch's PAT kick was blocked by a host of Papermakers but the Indians had a 9-0 cushion going into the final quarter.

Failing to move the ball the Papermaker defense stiffened and forced West to punt after three rushing plays didn't gain 10 yards. Van Hout returned Potratz's offering 14 yards to Oshkosh's 46. Again concentrating on the ground the Kims maneuvered to the Indian 14. Forced to try a 30 yard field goal the Papermakers were presented another opportunity to score a touchdown when West was called offside.

Three rushing plays moved the ball to the one yard line but the Kims were whistled in motion on fourth down and had to settle for Mike Verbeten's 22 yard field goal with 6:03 remaining in the contest. After an onside kick attempt fell short by three yards the hosts held and took over on their own two yard line after a 38 yard Potratz punt.

Moving to three first downs and the Oshkosh 49 Kimberly's final rally was stopped when Dick Van Grinsven's pass was picked off by Kurt Heinbigner on the Indian 20 yard line.

The defensive nature of the game was pointed out in the final statistics as neither team could total 200 yards. Kimberly totaled 166 yards with all but 17 on the ground while Oshkosh followed the same script with 164 net yards, 125 rushing.

Each team was called nine times for penalties in the game which evened their league records at 2-4.

Social Security covers some ambulance trips

Medicare's medical insurance will help pay for transportation of a Medicare patient by an approved ambulance service if transportation by other means would endanger the patient's health, according to Frank Donnicks, manager of the Appleton Social Security office.

Generally, only local ambulance trips are covered.

“An ambulance trip to or from a hospital or skilled nursing home is considered local if it begins within the area generally served by the institution. Medicare may also pay for ambulance trips between institutions when a patient is transferred from a hospital to a skilled nursing facility,” Donnicks said.

Medicare sometimes can pay for the ambulance used to transfer a patient from one hospital to another hospital. This would occur if the patient is taken to the closest hospital and discovers the hospital does not have the facilities to treat the injuries or illness. This would generally necessitate a transfer to a larger hospital.

Since ambulance service is covered under Medicare's medical insurance, the $60 deductible must be met. Medicare will then pay 80 per cent of the reasonable charges.

The Medicare claim may either be filed by the patient, or if the patient consents, by the ambulance company. If the ambulance company will accept an assignment, the Medicare payment can be paid directly to the company.

The bill for ambulance service must show the origin and destination of the trip, the name and address of the doctor who prescribed the trip, the name of the patient and the amount of the charge. Medicare needs this information to determine whether the ambulance service is covered.

Neenah students in all-star music fete

NEENAH — Four Neenah High School students participated in an all star string clinic at UW-Oshkosh Saturday.

Selected to participate by music director Leonard Hansen were Betsy Demyen, of the Shattuck campus, and Stephanie Pelietos, Renee Urban and Brian Bieser of the Armstrong campus.

The string clinic is sponsored each year by the music department of the university to provide an opportunity for young musicians to spend a day reading and rehearsing music with their peers. Students from all over the state attend.

Net income and sales increase at Allis-Chalmers

Net income and sales for the first nine months and third quarter of 1973 topped the net income and sales for the same periods a year ago at Allis-Chalmers Corp., Milwaukee-based firm with divisions in Appleton.

Net income was $12.0 million for the first nine months compared with $6.9 million a year earlier. This is equivalent to 96 cents per share and 55 cents, respectively.

Third quarter net income was $1.6 million, or 13 cents, compared with $900,000, or 7 cents, a year earlier.

Net income for the nine months included charges of $5,516,000 for plant closings and product line discontinuance, and reduction of provision for taxes by using estimated investment tax credit carryforwards of $2,850,000, said David C. Scott, chairman of the board, chief executive officer and president.

Sales were $855.7 million on a fully consolidated basis in the first nine months of 1973 compared with $705.0 million in the corresponding period of 1972. Operations of foreign subsidiaries were consolidated for the first time in 1972; however, this change had no effect on net income, Scott said.

Sales totaled $268.1 million in the third quarter of 1973 compared with $223.2 million a year earlier.

Scott commented that “encouragingly, we are ahead of plan at this time and are confident that our rate of improvement over 1972 will continue the rest of the year.”

Allis-Chalmers' Crushing and Screening Equipment and Paper Machinery divisions and solid waste processing operations are located in Appleton.

Time payment plan suggested for medical bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medical credit card and automatic time-payment plan would be available to every American family under the Nixon administration's new national health insurance program.

The plan is still in the works at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which faces major decisions on financing.

The cost of the plan has been estimated as high as $10 billion. When originally introduced, two years ago, the price tag was between $1 billion and $3 billion, but that version was ignored by Congress.

Sources said details of the new plan will be sent to the White House this week or early next week.

It will be centered around private insurance companies and would require employers to provide coverage for 39 million families under a cost-sharing plan and provide standard coverage for the poor, replacing Medicaid with a Government Assurance program.

The plan would expand benefits to cover the costs of drugs, skilled nursing care and mental illness, plus vision, hearing and dental care for children under 13, as well as physicians bills and hospital charges as originally proposed.

Under the system insurance companies would pay the bills immediately and extend credit to card holders for portions not covered by insurance.

Subsidies would be eliminated for persons with income of more than $10,000 but catastrophic coverage would apply after a family had spent $1,500 out of its own pocket for medical care.

“London to Venice” in Neenah travel series

NEENAH — “London to Venice,” a color travel film with an accompanying lecture by Thayer Soule, Rochester, N.Y., will be shown at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Shattuck High School Auditorium.

It is the second in a travel film series being sponsored this fall by the Fox Valley Technical Institute, Neenah school.

Tickets may be purchased at the door for a nominal fee.

The film includes a look at London, Paris, the Italian countryside and Venice. Soule has been a lifelong traveler and appears regularly in all parts of the country. He has been with the National Geographic Society for 22 consecutive years. He earned a degree at Harvard University, with high honors in languages, geographical studies and public speaking.

It takes two trips to put out a fire

NEENAH — Three units of the Neenah Fire Department responded to an alarm at approximately 9:30 a.m. Friday to fight a minor blaze at the home of Clarence Strobel, 113 Jackson St.

According to reports, the fire started in a second floor bedroom as a result of an unintended cigarette. The fire was confined to the bedroom.

Fire trucks returned to the same scene at approximately 1:15 p.m. Friday to extinguish smoldering wood shavings used as insulation in the walls of the home.

Courts

A Kaukauna boy already on supervision for car theft pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Juvenile Court this week to two more charges of taking cars without the owners' consent.

Judge R. Thomas Cane set sentencing for Oct. 29 and ordered a social study and a 7 p.m. curfew.

Kaukauna police said he was involved in the Sept. 4 theft of a car owned by John Stock and the Sept. 6 theft of an auto owned by Gerald Verbeten. The Stock car was abandoned at High Cliff State Park and the Verbeten car was found near the Kaukauna swimming pool.

The boy, 14, was placed on supervision to the Outagamie County Department of Social Services last July for stealing two cars and gasoline.

An Appleton boy who has repeatedly run away from the Wisconsin Child Center in Sparta was sent to Lincoln State School Thursday by Outagamie County Judge R. Thomas Cane, who said there was no alternative.

Appleton police said the boy, 16, fled the center last Saturday and hitchhiked to Appleton. Until Wednesday, the boy worked at a carnival at Pierce Park and “lived” under the Memorial Drive Bridge.

He was placed in juvenile detention Wednesday after he was caught shoplifting soft drinks and doughnuts at a super market.

The boy fled the center two weeks ago, came to Appleton and stole a car which he wrecked in an accident. Police said he has run away from the center four times.

The 14th person arrested in connection with a drug raid earlier this week in Appleton made his initial court appearance Friday, where he was charged with one count of selling amphetamines.

David R. Birch, who listed his address as route 3, Tripoli, appeared before Judge Nick F. Schaefer in Outagamie County Court Branch 2, where bail was set at $1,500 and the case continued to Monday, pending the outcome of a bail study.

Birch, 22, is accused of selling $10 worth of MDA to a county narcotics agent in downtown Appleton on Aug. 6.

Police are still looking for one young woman in relation to the investigation, and she is believed living in California.

Steinhilber criticizes professional politicians

JANESVILLE — State Sen. Jack Steinhilber (R-Oshkosh) charged that the recent legislative pay raises “encourage a pack of political parasites serving in office, dependent on their existence on getting re-elected at any cost.”

Speaking to Rock County Republic Women, Steinhilber said Wisconsin should continue to have “citizen legislators — people elected by their friends and neighbors who spend limited time in Madison making laws, and then returning home to live under those laws with their friends and neighbors.”

He said that the pay raises would encourage what he called “poli-sites. It is time to get the professional poli-sites out of government and get more common-sense citizens in.”

“The same is true at other levels of government. Recent events have shown that the poli-sites are as prevalent on the Potomac as on Lake Mendota in Madison. They can be identified by their two faces, their long noses in everybody's business, their grasping fingers at the public pay window and their voracious appetite for power over other people and other people's pocket-books.”

“As we approach the 200th anniversary of our republic, we should return to the principles that launched this nation. Citizen-politicians is one of the traditions that should be restored,” the assistant majority leader in the State Senate said.

“This was the intent of our founding fathers. People representing their fellow citizens for a short period of time and then returning to their former occupation, as did George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and the other architects of our republic.”

Homecoming '73

St. Mary Central High students readied their spirits for today's homecoming game against Fox Valley Lutheran last night with a parade and pop rally. Students burned the “F” with traditional antagonism for their foe. The winning float, “Dragon Home a Victory,” was constructed by the senior class. It was the third year the class took first place.

'Applefest Week' didn't come easily

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

Pat Boone's voice might have quivered had he known the trouble State Rep. Tobias Roth, R-Appleton, had to go through to get through the state legislature a resolution declaring Oct. 13-21 Applefest Week.

It almost ended up scheduled for a public hearing before a Senate committee five days after the start of Applefest week.

"Sometimes the legislative process gets very complicated over extremely simple matters," was the local lawmaker's matter-of-fact way of summing of the hassle he had getting the thing through the statehouse.

It all began Oct. 4, when Roth introduced the "simple" resolution in the assembly. Rules were suspended and it was passed expeditiously.

The assembly's mistake, in this particular case, was its referral of the resolution to the Senate, where it was sponsored by Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek.

The Senate received the resolution Oct. 5 and, in an unc customary move for such a piece of business, referred it to the committee on Governmental and Veterans Affairs. Committee Chairman Sen. Gordon Roseleip, R-Darlington, without realizing the nature of the resolution, scheduled it for a public hearing.

It was scheduled for Oct. 19. That would have delayed action on the resolution until at least five days after Applefest Week began.

When Roth got wind of what was happening, he thought it was a joke. His smile turned to a frown when he discovered the hearing was actually scheduled "right dab-smack in the middle of Applefest."

Roseleip, after "much cajoling and prompting" from Roth, cancelled the hearing. The resolution came up and was immediately passed by the senate Oct. 10.

Roth looks back on the experience, tongue in cheek, as a "saga." But he also recognizes that such procedural hangups can be a "serious matter" at times.

Roth, not wanting to chastise fellow Republican Roseleip too severely, said that the Applefest resolution was heaped along with several other legislative matters and perfunctorily scheduled for a hearing. Perhaps Roseleip should have had a more wary eye, Roth admits.

But there is a logjam of legislation in Madison that threatens serious consideration of more serious legislation. Roth points out.

"A representative or senator should only be allowed to introduce ten bills," he said in an interview this week. By limiting the number of bills lawmakers can introduce, committee calendars can be freed up and more time devoted to serious business.

Roth said he hopes to introduce a bill to impose such a limit during the next session of the legislature.

Such a rule would not limit the number of simple resolutions, like that recognizing this city's Applefest celebration that concludes Sunday.

"Those take very little time, and I think it's important to give recognition to leading citizens and communities in the state," said the freshman lawmaker.

Industries cast watchful eye at fuel situation

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

For the most part, Fox Cities industries have little choice but to hope there isn't a fuel shortage. Those contacted said they have no definite indication there will be a shortage, although they are aware that external forces could cause one.

They said their suppliers have indicated they will continue to be provided with fuel as long as the supplier is provided with fuel. If anything more than the few normal mid-winter days of natural gas interruption comes along, some companies could be forced to shut down.

Those in the best shape are the ones using coal. Some have switched to natural gas, probably because of current antipollution pressures, and if their gas is cut off for long periods, they are concerned about whether their fuel oil standby energy source will be adequate.

Hospitals are powered by natural gas, and presumably would be among the last to be cut off if there is a gas shortage. All have fuel oil as a standby energy source with Appleton Memorial Hospital recently adding a 10,000-gallon storage tank to boost its oil storage from a two-day to a seven day supply.

Fox River Paper Co. is one of those which recently switched to natural gas, having done so in 1969. Virgil VanAsten, plant engineer, said the firm couldn't exist on a reduced gas supply because it needs a full fuel source for production drying.

The company normally is faced with a mid-winter interruption, but relies on its fuel oil, he said. He said he would increase the three-day oil storage capacity, if he could.

VanAsten said suppliers indicated there could be problems in both oil and natural gas.

The Appleton coating and converting plant and the Roaring Springs, Pa., plant of Appleton Papers, division of NCR, use coal as their main energy source, but the Combined Locks mill uses natural gas. The mill could go to fuel oil or propane gas as an alternative fuel, as an oil boiler was recently added.

The company recently set up a special committee to study the problem and come up with recommendations on possible rationing or other possibilities.

Kimberly-Clark Corp. had set up a similar committee last winter and it recommended additional fuel storage facilities and that the firm find the most reliable fuel supply arrangements possible. Both measures were followed, but there is no guarantee if the suppliers are cut back, a K-C spokesman said.

"We'll have to just hope for the best as far as the winter cold and the Middle East situation are concerned," she said.

Spokesmen for natural gas and oil suppliers in the area said they had no reason at this time to warn of shortages. However, the oil spokesman said he believed there could be a natural gas shortage, and this would put excessive pressure on the fuel oil supply.

He suggested that if industry were on coal, there would be no shortage.

Ethics board told all is ethical

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Officials from 10 agencies have told the Wisconsin Ethics Board they have no knowledge of influence peddling in state government.

The board, meeting Thursday for the second time since it was created in the new state budget, called for comments on whether public officials have used bureaucracy influence for personal gain.

The board chairman, Thomas Smith, president of Lawrence University in Appleton, said the panel is holding hearings before it makes recommendations on legislation.

"Quite frankly, we would have to say that there has been no such abuse," James Peterson, administrator of the state Division of Motor Vehicles, said.

"There have been instances of legislators coming before our agency as private attorneys, but the consensus of opinion has been that no impropriety was involved," he said.

Some agency spokesmen said there is a lack of legislation on the potential of high officials to abuse their authority.

Peterson said there is "always the possibility" a hearing officer in his department might be influenced if he knew an attorney was also a legislator.

City Council tie votes give mayor a headache

Two tie votes by the Appleton City Council Wednesday created headaches for Mayor James Sutherland, who had to break one of them, and City Atty. David Geenen, who had to rule on another.

The complicated procedure pitted the mayor against aldermen who wanted to see him break a tie on whether to authorize Fire Chief Roland Kuehn to appear at a state Senate committee hearing to support a bill to increase the percentage of fire insurance premiums returned to municipalities.

Aldermen knotted on the issue, with some saying that they didn't want the chief to speak in favor of legislation, they might result in an increase of local fire insurance premium rates.

Those voting on both sides of the issues objected to Sutherland's ruling, made after conferring with Geenen, that such a vote required approval by a majority of the total council, 11, not just approval by a majority of the 15 who were present Wednesday.

"Where do we get all these new rulings," asked Ald. William Errington (15th), who voted for the motion and said "we ought to break this tie one way or the other."

Ald. Edward Maloney (9th), who voted no, said the move wasn't a resolution, which requires a majority of aldermen, but simply an authorization, which requires a majority of those present. The mayor could, therefore, break the tie.

Maloney called it "another convenient ruling," but Geenen countered, "Yeah, I'm really involved in this."

Errington and Maloney moved to challenge Sutherland's ruling on the tie vote. Before the tally, Geenen was asked how many votes it would take to override the chair.

"If it's a tie vote, the mayor wins," he responded.

"I can't believe this," an alderman could be heard to say, as the council continued on the relatively minor issue.

The vote on Sutherland's ruling was again a tie. The mayor voted "yes" to break it, thereby sustaining his original ruling and leaving the original motion defeated.

"I must commend you on your courage to vote aye," said Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th).

Another tie vote confronted aldermen Wednesday, but it didn't have to be broken. It was on a motion to suspend the rules and allow a vote on Ald. Walter Kalata's (2nd) effort to allow emergency parking in front of two Lawe Street businesses hard-pressed by a parking ban along that street.

A motion to suspend the rules requires a two-thirds vote.

In the same resolution sponsored by Kalata, he called for a study to consider the feasibility of on-street parking along one side of Lawe Street between 7 p.m. and 2 a.m.

The emergency provisions of Kalata's motion — to allow two parking spaces each in front of the Reinetta Art Centre and Jacobs Market — required immediate action, he said, owing to a lack of adequate customer parking space.

The street was closed to parking on both sides two weeks ago after it was widened and reconstructed earlier this year. The widening was less than the city public works department wanted because of protests from property owners concerned about a loss of trees.

Elimination of parking on both sides of the street, said art center partner O. Reynold Steinert in a letter to Kalata, could be a "death sentence to Reinetta Art Centre."

The failure to take immediate action on the request Wednesday means that the resolution from Kalata will have to travel the normal route through committee to council.

In other action Wednesday, the City Council:

— Authorized city officials to seek federal funding for the reconstruction of College Avenue, between Badger Avenue and Richmond Street, in 1974. The city is eligible for up to 70 per cent aids for the project.

Rural Fremont youth killed as tractor tips

DALE — A 16-year-old boy who early this year won a tractor driving award was killed Friday night when the borrowed tractor he was operating tipped into a ditch a mile from his route 1, Fremont, home.

Guy Russell Gauthier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gauthier, was dead on arrival at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Appleton. Death resulted from severe head injuries, according to Outagamie County Coroner Bernard H. Kemps.

The boy's death hikes the county traffic toll to 33, compared with 17 a year ago and raises the state toll to 912 compared with 937 a year ago.

County police said Gauthier was alone on a tractor northbound on Shaky Lake Road, a mile north of U.S. 10, when the accident occurred about 6:30 p.m.

The tractor tipped onto its side, pinning Gauthier, after going into a three-foot-deep ditch along the east side of the road.

A girl living nearby discovered the accident. Another tractor was used to pull the machine off Gauthier. The Dale rescue squad also was summoned.

The 1973 tractor was owned by Dale Sommers, route 1, Fremont.

The boy had won a tractor driving award in a contest sponsored by Future Farmers of America, his father said.

Gauthier, who moved from Menasha with his family a year ago, was a junior at New London High School. He was one of five children.

Funeral arrangements are being handled through Borchardt and Bode Funeral Home, New London.

William Cowart, 23, of Lexington, Ky., died Friday in a Milwaukee hospital of injuries he suffered Thursday when a car in which he was riding collided with a truck at a downtown intersection.

Ralph F. Kraby, 52, of rural Westby, died Friday when his pickup truck crashed beside a Crawford County highway.
